ORDER

Case No. 97-08722

Chapter 7

ENTERED

MAR 10 1998

V. L. D.

THIS MATTER came to be heard before me on December 3, 1997, on Wausau Insurance Company's (hereinafter "Wausau") Objection to Motion to Avoid Judicial Lien. Appearing on behalf of Wausau was its attorney, Robert M. White. Appearing on behalf of debtors was their attorney, Robert H. Cooper.

From the evidence presented, it appears to the Court that the debtors do not own real property to which the judicial lien could attach. Accordingly, there is no homestead exemption impaired by the lien as there is no "homestead". Also, without reality from which its value can be established, one of the necessary factors in determining whether a lien impairs, partially impairs, or does not impair an exemption is missing.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that Wausau's objection to the debtors' motion is sustained.
